

Captain Paul A. Sohl, U. S. Navy
Fleet Readiness Center Southeast
Executive Officer

CAPT Paul Sohl was born in Waterloo, Iowa and graduated from Rock Island High School, Rock Island, Illinois, in May 1981. After graduating from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in June 1985 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Aeronautical Engineering, he continued his education at Stanford University, receiving a Master of Science degree in Aeronautical and Astronautical Engineering in June 1986.

After commissioning through the Navy ROTC program, CAPT Sohl attended flight training in Pensacola, Florida and Beeville, Texas, earning his Wings in August 1988. Later that year, he reported to VFA-125 in Lemoore, California for training in the F/A-18 Hornet, with a subsequent assignment to the Stingers of VFA-113. While in VFA-113, he deployed to the Western Pacific on the USS Independence (CV-62) during Operation Desert Shield.

In the summer of 1992, CAPT Sohl was selected to attend the United States Naval Test Pilot School (USNTPS), Patuxent River, Maryland. Upon graduation with USNTPS Class 104 in 1993, he reported to the Weapons Test Squadron, China Lake, California, working on numerous F/A-18C Operational Flight Program Upgrade projects. While on this assignment, CAPT Sohl was selected as an Aerospace Engineering Duty Officer (AEDO). He was also selected as "Test Pilot of the Year" for the Naval Air Warfare Center, Weapons Division in 1995.

CAPT Sohl's first assignment as an AEDO was to the Naval Aviation Depot, North Island, California, working as the Deputy Program Manager for the F/A-18 program. In August 1998, he reported to the Joint Strike Fighter (JSF) Program Office in Crystal City, Virginia, first as the Executive Assistant to the Director, then as a member of the JSF Source Selection Team.

He reported aboard USNTPS as Executive Officer in August 2001 and assumed command of the school in April 2003. After leaving the TPS in January 2005, CAPT Sohl went to AIR-6.0 for eight months and then volunteered for a 6-month tour in Afghanistan. Upon his return to Patuxent River, he was assigned as the Government Flight Test Director of the new Presidential Helicopter, VH-71A. During this tour, he was slated for Command of the Fleet Readiness Center Southeast. In 2007, he began his tour as Executive Officer.

CAPT Sohl has logged over 2700 flight hours in over 30 types of aircraft. His personal decorations include the Defense Meritorious Service Medal, the Meritorious Service Medal, the Navy Commendation Medal and others.
